To have a computer translate code written in a computer language into an executable form. This is usually done by a specific translator program called a compiler. There are compilers for virtually every language on every platform. Those that create code on one platform for use on another are called cross compilers. Compilers take code written in a particular syntax and usually convert it to binary, machine code instructions.

From:
https://wiki.midibox.org/ - MIDIbox

Permanent link:
https://wiki.midibox.org/doku.php?id=compile&rev=1160904901

Last update: 2011/06/27 18:04