1. A physical site where there are hardware resources, usually a server and additional supporting equipment.
2. The finished process of getting a piece of software on a system.

See also Install