i have a “classic” Midibox+, built in 2002. I didn't use the Box much lately but i will be in the near future. I intend to use it to manipulate the Automation Lines in Blue. Blue is a composition program for Csound. Plans are to make those Automation Lines midify-able. I hope this works out well because there are surely some problems to overcome or to accept. One thing might be the relative poor resolution of midi itself - a resolution of 127. And the Automation Lines in Blue can have a resolution of 5000 or .6, or 50, depends on the values you want it to be between 2 'border' values. If and when these Automation Lines and midi are working i will surely tell you more about it.
